Andrew Rea

PA Consulting

Andrew Rea is a Partner in PA's Global Energy Practice with more than 20 years of diverse experience across the energy sector.

Andrew has particular insight and expertise in Western (and specifically, California) power and natural gas market issues, and offers project management expertise, leading engagements for energy clients across North America and around the world. Andrew has led PA's recent work for the City Council, and previously led the IEA Survey of the LADWP, focusing attention in and assessing the risk associated with multiple strategic and operational areas of the Department. Andrew is an expert in renewable power procurement and helped launch a renewable power aggregation business designed to streamline the deployment and procurement of renewable energy resources. He has also led financial reviews and audits of numerous power and gas utilities.

Andrew spent 14 years in senior roles at Sempra Energy and its predecessor company Southern California Gas before joining PA and is intimately familiar with all aspects of the California energy regulatory environment. He has particular expertise in project finance, market analysis, risk management, acquisition planning and implementation as well as new business creation.

He has in depth knowledge of the political and regulatory landscape across North America having spent several years as a lobbyist at the state, provincial and Federal Levels. Andrew has served as Engagement Director for major industry players in the United States, Canada, and Brazil.
